- ask students to imagine what's inside a radio station: the place where they broadcast (Who might be there? What might be there?)
- provide blank paper and pencils and ask students to draw what they think might be inside a radio station while they listen to an actual radio station
- as the radio plays, occasionally draw attention to the sounds (what is that?)
- collect papers and explain that we will do another drawing after we have gone to visit a radio station or seen more > this will be evidence of their learning
